EDITOR'S LETTER

As the year comes to an end, we are happy to report a successful year for the Society. Our Conference in Miami, Florida was very successful and we had many new members join the Society. In addition many more have heard from us via the REVISTA in the many libraries that receive it and also via the Directory of Genealogical Societies, where we are listed.

At this time we would like to invite all of the members, that have not yet done so, to send their pedigree charts and family group sheets so we can include them in our files and have them available in the master index that we are compiling.

Included in this issue we have the Year to Date Index for all the articles in REVISTA, as a separate booklet, so it is easier to use.

We encourage all of our members to write articles about their family history, one of their ancestors, or a historical article to be published in the REVISTA. It will be edited by us and a copy of the article will be sent to you for approval before publishing.

José Güell y Renté:
of our History.

At the beginning of the XIX century, Cuba was enjoying the economic welfare that was the product of the administrative reforms initiated by Francisco de Arango y Parreño, as well as by the labors of the government of Luis de las Casas and his successor Juan de Bassecourt, Count of Santa Clara.

During this time, proceeding from Spain, Pablo Güell y Taxó arrived to Cuba, originally from San Martín de Torrellas, Cataluña, who later married the Cuban born Josefa Teresa Renté y Ruiz, originally from Guanabacoa.

To this marriage, that took place the 13th of January of 1815, five sons and two daughters were born: Teresa, María de los Dolores, Martín, Juan Francisco, Joaquín and José Lorenzo Buenaventura, who was born the 10th of September of 1818, and baptized by P.B. Ramón Castañeda in the parish of Espíritu Santo de 14th of that month and year, was named José Lorenzo Buenaventura. His godparents were Santiago Renté and María Dolores Renté.

From his childhood José was seen as having excellent disposition for the written language, having written, at age 15, his first poem. This marked the beginning of his love for the studies of teaching and he received his elementary education at the Colegio Buenavista, located in El Cerro, which was directed by the famous educator Mariano Cubi Soler, founder of the first school of higher education in the island, founder of the Revista Bimestre Cubana, and founder of the Patriotic Society of Cuba. José Güell later attended college at the Seminario de San Carlos, being tutored by the great writer and journalist José Antonio Saco. At age sixteen he traveled to Barcelona to study law, where he graduated as Doctor of Law in 1838.

After returning to La Habana, he published his poems Amarguras del Corazón, in 1843, poems that he himself explained: "I wrote more for the purpose of quieting my sorrows than to publish them and have them in everyone's hands, and Heavens knows how they'll be judged!" This same book was reedited and published under the title of Lagrimas del Corazón, in Madrid in 1846; in Valladolid in 1854, and in Paris in 1878.

During his stay in La Habana, our poet attended frequently the halls of the society in La Habana, where he became known for his friendliness and good conversation, having been a regular in the discussions of the current cultural trends. To Güell y Renté the political problems of the country seem to be not important and he continues his life apart from this turmoil.

He stays in Cuba until he decides to travel to Génova, via Cadiz, in the frigate "Leontina", the 19th of November of 1843. In 1848 we find Güell and Renté in Madrid, being the center of an important event whose news travel all over the world: This distinguished young man, of athletic appearance, excellent speaker, wealthy and still single, while walking with some friends in the Paseo de la Castellana, saw that a carriage with two ladies in it was being run out of control by the two horses, which the carriage man could not control. José Güell ran to the carriage and threw himself over one of the horses and was able to force the beast to the floor, stopping the runaway carriage. The two ladies in the carriage were the princess Josefa Fernanda Borbón-Sicilia, sister to the King Francisco de Asis, husband to Isabel II and her maid. This heroic act was well commented in Madrid and abroad, making José Güell a national hero.

The next day, in the Royal Palace, accompanied by the Queens, the King expressed to Güell y Renté his gratitude for having saved the life of Josefa and her maid. After that, with frequency, José meets the princess in different parks of the city and with time the couple announced their engagement and possible marriage. In 1848 José Güell y Renté and Josefa Fernanda de Borbón were married in Valladolid; this action was not met with favor by the King and he ordered Josefa's name to be removed from the royal list, taking away all her privileges as princess and she was exiled from Spain. The couple at this time took residence in France.

The princess, even though in exile persisted in maintaining her privileges as a member of the royal family, in a petition she intends to preserve the rights of succession to the throne of Spain for her sons. Raimundo, obtained in 1867, the title of Marquis of Valcarlos, Great of Spain and her second son, Fernando, obtained in 1879, the title of Marquis of Güell.

José Güell asked his once teacher, José Antonio Saco, to write the petition above mentioned, which was written in the most elegant and careful manner. Saco was at the time in exile in France because of a disposition given by Captain General Miguel Tacón, for "Exercising too much influence in the Cuban youth".

During his marriage Güell y Renté started to take part in the political activities of Spain, in a period when the country was going through quite an upheaval of military pronouncements, disorders, riots and crimes. He was an important figure in the movement against the government of the Count of San Luis, called the regime of the Ministry of Usury, and when the revolution starts in 1854 he takes his place in front of the troops of the city of Valladolid, sustaining the Manifest of Manzanares, written by Antonio Cánovas del Castillo and whose movement gave the government of Spain to the Generals Leopoldo O'Donnell and Baldomero Espartero. Güell y Renté was elected Deputy of the Courts of Valladolid, where he sustained his ideal of valor and a man of democratic ideas.

Two years later the political upheaval in Spain continues, and is aggravated by the barbaric act of General O'Donnell of dissolving the Courts and replacing the Constitution of 1845. Güell y Renté rebelled against this act, but is taken prisoner and is saved from sure death by the amnesty that General O'Donnell announces by suggestion of the new Court. The erroneous move of General O'Donnell was the cause of the crisis that eventually caused his fall and brought about the coming to power of General Narváez, Duke of Valencia, who took away all the progress that the revolution of 1854 had obtained.

Güell y Renté once again emigrated, together with Cristino Matos, Juan Prim, Práxedes Mateo Sagasta, Emilio Castelar, Salustino Olózaga, Francisco Pi and Margall and other famous civil and military characters of the political scenario in Spain who had been condemned to death by the new government.

Even after his active role in the political life of Spain, Güell y Renté was still a Cuban that loved his country. Through correspondence that he sustained with Cubans exiled in Spain and France he had knowledge of the situation in Cuba, politically as well as culturally.

These sentiments of concern were evident in his letter to José Antonio Saco, where he expressed his intense sorrow for the death of Domingo del Monte, in Madrid on the 4th of November of 1853:

My heart is in mourning: I received the news from Madrid that Domingo is dead: Every day we loose another hope. Aged some, exiled others, yet others suffering the martyrdom of the immoral and stupid government in power, and everyone ending in sorrow, giving to our children the pain with which we die.

During his stay in France, in the year 1873, it was of great satisfaction for Güell y Renté to get to know personally Francisco Vicente Aguilera, who had come to Paris to collect funds for the revolution in Cuba from the wealthy Cubans living in France. He told Güell of his friendship with Carlos Manuel de Céspedes, that had started when they were students in Barcelona and during the time that Céspedes, as a military man, collaborated with General Juan Prim in the conspiracy of 1842. He also knew ahead of time of the cry for a revolution that was to take place in La Demajagua on the 10th of October of 1868. He also told Güell that in a conference that took place between José Morales Lemus, Minister of the United States from the government of Céspedes, it was established that General Prim would help the Cuban revolution if the Cubans gave him four hundred thousand pesos that he needed to start the new government in Spain. But Morales Lemus, who promises to study the plan, never gave him an answer.

During the conversation with Francisco Vicente Aguilera, José Güell y Renté assured his friend that his most cherished dream was to see Cuba free and independent and that he wanted to die in the land that had seen him be born; and that his children Raimundo and Fernando, even though they had been born in Spain, were Cubans at heart because he had taught them to love his country.

Because of his fame as an educated man of progressive thoughts, he was elected Senator of the Kingdom for the University of La Habana in 1879. In this position he distinguished himself by advocating for the rights of Cuba to govern herself; his dislike of the slavery of the black man by the white man, presenting programs to abolish this practice, the education of the black and the growth of the wealth in Cuba. He also obtained another success when he took to promote the construction of a building for the University of La Habana in the land occupied by the old wall of the city, where today stands the Avenue of Las Misiones. For this purpose he traveled to Cuba and the 23rd of January of 1884 he placed the corner stone for this magnificent edifice that would house the departments of art and science and museums.

During his period as Senator he also took interest in the affairs of Spain, and in a letter written by Martí, as journalist of the newspaper La Opinión Nacional, from Caracas in New York, he writes about the daring idea of Güell y Renté to take a hand in the project of reclaiming Gibraltar for Spain:

In the Senate, a Cuban has brought a great turmoil.
And it was not to favor Cuba, who is the nest of the turmoils, but about Gibraltar. The question that Güell y Renté, Senator for the University of La Habana, has brought about surprise and shook the Ministry. Like a ghost, the Minister of Exterior, fled from the question: "Why, why—asked the Senator Güell--do we not try to get Gibraltar, the key of Spain, in a sea full of Spanish bravery, to bring back the power of Spain to it." Great surprise caused the words of Güell because, even though the Government brags about how they view the representatives of Cuba as sons of this nation, dear sons, to them it is appalling and intrusive of their rights that a representative of the Antilles bring to discuss and propose action on the affairs of the Nation.

Afterward Martí mentions that Güell is a man of pure thoughts and good heart, he tells us in his interesting article that the Cuban Senator "has decided it was a rude response of the Ministry that the question be taken to the public, to move the opinion and bring the press into action, to see if the project merits attention, when all he had suggested was to offer England a colony in the coast of Morocco in exchange for Gibraltar."

The brilliant and exemplary actions of Güell y Renté as Senator was described by Martí with these words: "Liberal Senators for La Habana, Labra and Güell. The rest, conservatives and partial to slavery."

On Saturday the 20th of December, 1884, while getting ready to attend a theater production with his friend the Count of Santovenia, Güell was the victim of a cerebral congestion. By his inert body a group of friends and admirers gathered. His son Raimundo stood there holding a cup that contained the blood taken from his father in an effort to save his life.

Friends like Miguel de los Santos, Emilio Castelar, Horacio Lengo, Rafael M. de Labra, Antonio F. Grillo y Pedro Bofill expressed their grief and respect to the man that had represented with zeal and dignity the University of La Habana as Senator of the Kingdom.

José Güell y Renté died poor, but with a legacy of literary fame and even though his wish of dying in La Habana was not to be, his body was sent to Cuba on the ship "Reina María Cristina" in the month of March of 1891. On the 4th of April of 1891 Cuba was in mourning as the body of José Güell y Renté was taken from the University of La Habana to the Cemetery of Colón and placed in his last resting place.

As a journalist his works were published in El Heraldó, El Triunfo, El Clamor Público and other newspapers of Madrid; in El Correo de Ultramar, in Paris; in El Faro Industrial, La Prensa, Diario de la Habana and El Triunfo in La Habana.

The world over received his works with gusto. Especially the books Leyendas Americanas, a study of costumes that was translated into English, Italian and German. In Valladolid he wrote Pensamientos Cristianos y Filosóficos, which in its second edition was titled Consideraciones Políticas, Filosóficas y Literarias. Another book that was published in French and Spanish was Leyendas de un alma triste. Also in Paris he published the book Felipe II y Don Carlos ante la historia, and the historic drama of five acts titled Don Carlos.

Our own writer Manuel de la Cruz, speaking of Güell expresses himself this way: "Güell y Renté a son of Almeydares that viewed the definition of his beliefs has hard work for his ideals".

Manuel Sanguily, our great critic, remembers him this way: "Sr. D. José Güell y Renté, Senator for the University of La Habana, loved by the Cubans and the foreigners that knew him, died unexpectedly, far away from his country, a man of self discipline, reserved, very discrete and extremely able in his speech, in the most cultured way, zealous defender of the rights of his country, enthusiastic lover of progress and the splendor of higher educations. He spoke slowly, gracefully and with certain plainness, very effective to conquer the listeners."

During his full life José Güell y Renté occupied high posts and received great honors: he was a lawyer, orator, poet, writer, journalist, conspirator, Senator of the Kingdom, Sir in the Chamber of the King, Knight of the Order of Isabel la Católica, received the Gran Cruz of the Order of Carlos III and he was Comendador to the Legion of Honor of France. He also pretended to leave to his descendants the throne of Spain; but after all his accomplishments he remains today almost unknown to his fellow Cubans and in the land where he lived most of his life.

Apart from the real merit that his literary works deserve, we want to bring to light this personage that we consider a legendary figure of history that merit to be known in all its aspects for its praiseworthy and inspiration.

CUBANS OF TODAY

This book was written by The Hispanic Society of America, in 1919 for the purpose of "the advancement of the study of the countries wherein Spanish and Portuguese are or have been spoken languages."

Quoting from the foreword of the book:

Those whose careers are here recorded may fairly be taken as representative of Cuba. They are drawn from every important field of the national life, as from every profession and calling; they include Artist, Authors, Churchmen, Diplomats, Journalists, Lawyers, Merchants, Officials, Orators, Poets, Soldiers, and Teachers. They are likewise drawn from every part of the Island; all six provinces and almost every town in the Republic will find their sons here, and if Havana seems to have a disproportioned quota in the list, this is due to the traditional disposition in Latin countries to make the Capital city the focus of the national life.

The biographies of the elder men reflect the tremendous part which the struggle for Independence played in their time and show how military prestige overshadowed for a time other kinds of distinctions just as the lives of the younger men disclose the increasing value being attached to scientific, commercial, literary, and scholastic attainments.

To give an example of the type of information you will find in these biographies we will include the one written about José Miguel Gómez.

Jungman

JOSE MIGUEL GOMEZ

Soldier; man of affairs;
statesman; ex-President of the Republic of Cuba.

José Miguel Gómez was born in the year 1858 in the ancient town of Sancti Spiritus and here, in a Colegio maintained by the Society of Jesus, he obtained his early education. After some years he proceeded to Havana and entered the Institute there. Meantime the Ten Years' War which disturbed the country from 1868 to 1878 was raging and at last the call to arms became too urgent for young Gómez to resist and, in 1876, only a short time before his graduation from the institute, he joined the forces in the field and fought to the end of the war in Sancti Spiritus.

From this time on he has taken part in nearly every political movement in Cuba. He had a prominent and not inglorious share in the War of Independence, joining the forces of General Serafin Sánchez in the early conflict and continuing in arms until the close. He was made Lieutenant Colonel in command of the "Máximo Gómez" regiment and rose from rank to rank by valor in the field, becoming Colonel by reason of the battle of Palo Prieto—one of the most important battles of the war, becoming Brigadier General by the battle of Santa Teresa—where he was wounded—and finally winning the rank of Major General by valor in the field of Gibaro and Arroyo Blanco.

General Gómez enjoyed the special confidence and regard of the Commander-in-Chief Máximo Gómez, to such a degree that when Maceo was killed, he was selected to take Maceo's place in command of the forces of the West. For this duty Gómez began to organize a force of volunteers, but so numerous were these that the mandate was recalled, the Commander-in-Chief fearing that his army would be weakened and he himself be deprived of an indispensable associate. During these strenuous times Gómez lived a life of incessant toil and combat--at one period, during General Weyler's campaign in the Sancti Spiritus region, fighting no fewer than seventeen minor engagements in one day.

It was General Gómez's good fortune in all these combats, great and small, never to have been defeated, though often engaged with much superior forces of the enemy and on one occasion, when the force at his command amounted only to seventy men, taking captive no fewer than two hundred Spanish calvary, men, horses, and equipment.

At the close of the war, General Gómez was elected Representative to the famous Last Assemblée of the Revolution which met first in Santa Cruz del Sur and later in the Cerro at Havana. He was also a member of the commission which was sent to Washington to obtain a settlement of Soldiers' claims for back pay, his associates being Generals Calixto García, González Lanuza, Villalón and Sanguily. In 1898 he was appointed Governor of Las Villas, under the American Intervention, and continued in the same office by votes of his fellow-citizens at the election of 1901. In 1905 he was the candidate, of the Liberal party for the Presidency of the Republic but failed to be elected. Where-upon, after a visit to the United States, he devoted himself for a time to business interests, acting as head of the Silveria Sugar Co.

When the Revolution of 1906 occurred Gómez was arrested and placed under indictment, but was released at the order of the American Commissioners, Taft and Bacon. General Gómez now devoted himself to politics; he was again nominated for the Presidency by the Liberal historical party which fused with the old Liberal party and elected its candidate in 1908.

The administration of General Gómez (1909-1913) was marked by many achievements, among which was the reorganization of the army, the increase of the national marine, the improvement of the ports, roads, and bridges, the construction of railways, the improvement of the condition of the workingmen, and the enlargement of the public schools.

Following the election in 1912 of General Menocal, candidate of the Conservative party, General Gómez made an extended visit to Europe, and on his return abstained from politics until the Presidential election of 1916 when he gave his utmost efforts to secure the election of Alfredo Zayas. On the defeat of Zayas in a disputed election, there were various disorders which grew to the proportions of a revolution in which General Gómez became involved and in February, 1917, he was seized and imprisoned for a brief period after which he retired to the United States.

Parish Register of the Cathedral of Santiago de Cuba

Baptism, Marriages and Deaths from 1586 or earlier to 1888

The transcriptions from the Cathedral of Santiago de Cuba, Oriente, are of selected families that were being studied at the time by Francisco Xavier de Santa Cruz and his associates.

The extractions cover the years 1586 or earlier to 1888. There was no order to the entries, but they have not been put in chronological order because many of the entries lack the date. Instead, they make reference to the Folio and Number of the entry, and in order to not destroy any clues that the order of the entries may have, we have left them in the order they were written. The Folio and Number were not included in the listing because of lack of space and because it did not fit the format.

This listing concludes the material available from the Cathedral of Santiago de Cuba, and it contains baptism, marriages and death entries.

The information contained in the following listing has the same format as previously used. To recap: The surname and given name are found first, followed by the sex of the individual, the date of the marriage, a letter indicating whether the individual listed is the one receiving the ordinance (B) for baptism, (M) for marriage, (D) for Death, or is associated genealogically (G); this G follows the names of parents or other spouses and witnesses, if any. The numbers at the very end refer to the page and entry number of the original transcription. These are helpful in looking at the individuals identified in a given entry and may also be used for further reference in corresponding with CGS to get a printout of the entry as it appears in the original transcription.
